FACULTIES CURRICULUM FEEDBACK REPORT 2023-2024

Introduction

The curriculum feedback report for the academic year 2023-24 provides a comprehensive review of faculty perceptions regarding the effectiveness, relevance, and overall quality of the current curriculum. This survey was conducted to assess how well the curriculum meets learning objectives, the adequacy of resources, and the development of skills and engagement strategies for students. Responses from a total of 85 faculty members were analysed, with feedback data represented in percentages to capture overarching trends and pinpoint areas for potential enhancement.

Feedback Report

Faculty responses indicate a largely positive assessment of the curriculum, with 85% of respondents affirming that the curriculum aligns well with its intended learning outcomes. This data highlights a generally strong connection between the curriculum and academic objectives, although 15% of respondents believe improvements could be made to ensure greater industry relevance.

Regarding learning resources, 80% of faculty noted that current materials are sufficient for supporting curriculum goals. However, 20% suggested the inclusion of more updated resources, particularly online databases and digital learning tools, to further enrich the educational experience. Skill development received positive feedback, with 88% of faculty members recognizing the curriculum's success in fostering critical thinking and analytical abilities. Nonetheless, 12% recommended more practical elements, such as lab sessions and internships, to enhance real-world application.

In terms of student engagement, 82% of respondents agreed that the curriculum motivates and engages students effectively. Assessment methods were also positively received, with 85% of faculty satisfied with the current evaluation approach, though 15% called for a broader range of assessment formats..

Analysis

- Alignment with Outcomes: A strong majority, 85%, feel that the curriculum effectively aligns with academic goals, though there is a need for periodic updates to maintain industry relevance.
- Resource Adequacy: 80% of faculty consider the current resources adequate, but a significant minority recommend enhanced access to updated digital resources.
- Skill Development: An impressive 88% support the curriculum's role in fostering analytical skills, with additional practical experiences suggested to strengthen real-world readiness.
- Student Engagement: With 82% satisfaction, the curriculum generally engages students, but there is room to increase interactive and dynamic components.
- Assessment Methods: 85% approve of the assessment methods, yet a minority advocate for diversified assessments to cover a broader skill range.

Action Taken Report

- Resource Enhancement
 - Procure updated learning materials, including new textbooks, online databases, and multimedia resources.
- Increased Practical Exposure
 - Develop partnerships with local industries to offer internship opportunities and integrate project-based learning into the curriculum.
 - Status: Initial discussions with industry partners are underway for implementation in the next academic year.
- Enhanced Student Engagement
 - Conduct training workshops for faculty on interactive teaching methods, such as group projects and case studies, to improve student engagement.
 - Timeline: Faculty training planned for the upcoming Academic year.

These action items are designed to address feedback-driven improvements, ensuring a curriculum that stays relevant and enhances the overall educational experience.
